1.0 INTRODUCTION

Rt. Hon. Speaker and Hon. Members,

The Mental Health Bill, 2014 was read for the first time on 15th August 2015. However, the 9th Parliament was unable to consider the bill and thus it was saved. Consequently, on 21st July, 2016, the 10th Parliament reinstated the bill, and the Committee on Health, in accordance with rule 185(c), commenced with the consideration and scrutiny.

2.0 BACKGROUND TO THE BILL

The current law, 'the Mental Treatment Act, 1964', is outdated and does not take into account;

- a) The discovery of medicines and other treatment interventions that have revolutionalized the care of persons with mental illnesses
- b) The human rights and medical treatment standards of persons suffering with mental illness.

The overall objective of the Mental Treatment Act, 1964, was to remove persons with mental illnesses from society and keep them in confinement without serious consideration for clinical care, medical treatment standards and human rights of persons suffering with mental illness.

Consequently, the enactment of the Mental Health Bill, 2014' is intended to;

- Ensure that persons with mental illness are enabled to seek treatment voluntarily and to ensure their safety and protection of their rights.
- Ensure safety of the people who come into contact with persons with mental illness and also establish the Mental Health Advisory Board.
- Operationalize the National Health Policy which identifies mental health services as an essential aspect of health care. The policy advocates for mental health services at all levels to be integrated into general health care

4.0 OBSERVATIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

In the course of scrutiny of the bill, the Committee noted that there were strong views in support of the Bill as well as some areas that require harmonization. These include;

4.1 KEY DEFINITIONS

a) Mental illness

The Committee noted that;

There is no agreed upon definition of the term 'mental illness. Some authors refer to the term 'mental illness as "a variety of disorders causing severe disturbances in thinking, feeling and relating to others. Persons suffering from mental illness have a substantially diminished capacity for coping-up with the ordinary demands of life".

World Health Organization does not have a definition of mental illness but defines mental disorders as "a broad range of problems with different symptoms characterized by abnormal thoughts, emotions, behavior, and relationships with others".

The fifth and most current edition of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM-5, American Psychiatric Association) defines a mental disorder as: "a syndrome characterized by clinically significant disturbance in an individual's cognition, emotion regulation, or behavior that reflects a dysfunction in the psychological, biological, or developmental processes underlying mental functioning". Mental disorders are usually associated with significant distress in social, occupational, or other important activities. Expectable or culturally approved response to a common stressor or loss, such as the death of a loved one, is not a mental disorder. Socially deviant behavior (e.g., political, religious, or sexual) and conflicts that are primarily between the individual and society"

The 10th and most current edition of the International Classification of Mental Disorders (ICD-10, WHO) avoids the complexities of the terms disease or illness and rather uses mental disorder, defined as: 'the existence of a clinically recognizable set of symptoms or behavior associated in most cases with distress and with interference with personal functions. Social deviance or conflict alone without personal dysfunction should not be included in mental disorder as defined here'.

b) Mental Disability

The Committee noted that;

Most definitions of disability recognize that there must be impairment and functional limitation. The Collins English Dictionary defines disability as a general or specific intellectual handicap, resulting directly or indirectly from injury to the brain or from abnormal neurological development

In Uganda, disability is broadly defined as "a substantial functional limitation of daily life activities caused by physical, mental or sensory impairment and environmental barriers resulting in limited participation". (Persons with Disability act 2006)

(c) Psychiatric Disability

The term psychiatric disability is used when mental illness significantly interferes with the performance of major life activities, such as learning, working, and communicating, among others.

To qualify for disability as mental disorder it must: interfere in one's ability to work in order to provide for themselves financially; significantly reduce one's capacity to complete tasks of daily living (shopping, self-care, food preparation, etc.); prevent one from caring for him-, or herself and/or others.

The bottom of the page is filled with various handwritten signatures and scribbles. On the left, there are several overlapping signatures, including one that appears to say 'Ay. bwe'. In the center, there is a signature that looks like 'Gomut en' and another that says '6'. To the right, there is a large, stylized signature that looks like 'M...' and another that says 'Gaut'. At the bottom right, there are more signatures, including one that says 'Kia' and another that says 'Kutouge'.

Recommendation

The Committee therefore recommends the use of, Mental Illness as it is the one in use by the known international classification guidelines.

4.2 MENTAL HEALTH ILLNESS BURDEN

The Committee was informed that;

Mental Illness is a condition that affects a person's thinking, feeling or mood. Such conditions may affect someone's ability to relate with others and functionality. Different people have different experiences, including people with the same diagnosis (National Alliance on Mental Illness, 2018).

Mental disorders account for 13% of the global burden of disease. Uganda has been ranked among top six countries in Africa with the highest cases of mental disorder- according to World Health Organization (WHO). The Uganda National Health Survey (2005/2006) estimated that 7% of all households in Uganda have a disability, and of these, 58% had at least one family member with mental illness.

There are common mental disorders (eg depression, anxiety, and alcohol use disorders among others) and severe mental illnesses (eg bipolar disorders, psychosis and epilepsy).The latest WHO report (2006) indicates that at least 7.4% Ugandans suffer from common mental illnesses, particularly depression, anxiety and alcohol use disorders. At the health facility level WHO estimates that at least 33% attend for a mood disorder such as depression. The number could be higher because many victims stay in the villages without care. It is estimated that the treatment gap for mental disorders (defined as the proportion of those that get treatment to the total that need it) Uganda is 85% meaning that only 15% of those with mental ill health that need care, do get it.

A collection of handwritten signatures and initials in black ink, including names like 'Ajim', 'Gerrit', 'Mbulungu', and 'Kus'. There are also some scribbles and a large signature on the right side.

Ironically, there are no reliable national estimates for the prevalence of the severe mental disorders but there is evidence that attendance in mental health OPD clinics of such disorders is on the rise. The rise in mental disorders is due to factors such as poverty, prevalent infections particularly HIV-AIDS, rising burden of chronic diseases such as cancer and diabetes, effects of civil war or insurgency, and the growing problem of alcohol and substance use disorders.

For instance, previous studies in Uganda have put the prevalence of Bipolar disorder at 3% of the total Ugandan population while epilepsy has been estimated at 3% in the community and 17% in health facility attendances (WHO-AIMS Report on Mental Health System in Uganda, WHO and Ministry of Health, Kampala, Uganda, 2006)

Observation

While mental illnesses are on the rise in Uganda, lack of or very little statistical data on the national prevalence of various mental illnesses in the country is not helping the situation.

Recommendation

The Ministry of health should consider carrying out mental health survey and integrate Mental Health Service data into the National Health planning.

4.3 PSYCHIATRIC CARE FOR MENTAL ILLNESS

The Committee learnt that;

The mental health services are still significantly underfunded (with only 1% of the health expenditure going to mental health), and skewed towards urban areas.

There were 1.4 community based inpatient beds per 100,000 persons, by 2005. These are beds in the regional referral mental health units. These beds are now much fewer (0.9 beds/100000 population) since the beds have not increased but the population has grown to nearly 40 million.

The mental Hospital also houses 116 forensic beds but there are hardly mentally ill offenders admitted there. This is because it is not secure enough for such patients. As a result these patients continue to be kept in prisons around the country. There are no forensic beds elsewhere in the country.

There are 13 Regional Referral Mental health Units and one National mental Hospital with 550 beds. However, the bed occupancy is 150% indicating a 50% rate of extra cases. The National mental hospital has a few specialized units.

There are 30 beds in the children and adolescent health unit, dedicated to the children and adolescents with mental illness in the country since there are no specific services dedicated to the children with mental illness in other regions in the country.

Thirty of the beds at the mental hospital are dedicated to alcohol and drugs rehabilitation services. There no other beds in the country dedicated for this purpose. A few beds are available in the private hospitals but the number has not been established. Much of the country has no access to specialized mental health services such as child and adolescent and alcohol and drug rehabilitation services. Of necessity, some specialized care may need to be residential, whether public or private.

Observation

The Committee observed that

The 30 beds available for these specialized services (children and adolescents) at the national referral hospital are not adequate to serve the entire country.

The bottom of the page contains several handwritten signatures and scribbles. On the right side, there is a signature that appears to be 'G. M. M.' and another signature below it. On the left side, there are several signatures, including one that looks like 'Ay. Bule' and another that looks like 'Jemut'. In the center, there is a small number '9'. On the right side, there is a large signature that looks like 'M. B. M.' and another signature below it that looks like 'M. B. M.'. There are also some other scribbles and marks.

The procedure for admitting and discharging persons with mental disorders is not feasible in the present context where the numbers are quite big.

The Bill should provide for sensitizing the public about the causes of mental illness the methods of prevention of mental illness.

The idea of treating people at the primary health care level is very progressive.

There is need to address child psychiatry which is a growing discipline.

Recommendation

The Committee recommends that Government should;

- a) Establish a framework for extending Mental Health care services to regional and Primary Health Centres.
- b) Encourage the Private sector to participate in mental health care services.

4.4 ALTERNATIVE TREATMENTS

The Committee noted that;

Alternative healers provide an alternative system of care for the mentally ill. They are a culturally accepted resource in communities. Mental illnesses are a common reason to visit traditional healers and religious leaders as an alternative.

Abbo and others in their study (2009) found that majority (65.1%) of people that visited traditional healers had psychological distress. Of these ill health, nearly 30% had severe mental illness (bipolar disorder or schizophrenia), 14.6% had the more common mental disorders (depression and anxiety) while 3.9% had suicidality.

The Committee observed that;

While these traditional healers and religious leaders are accepted and widely used by communities, there is no legal framework to regulate their activities and at times they may cause harm and delay in seeking effective evidence based treatments in health facilities even for patients with severe mental disorders and suicide.

Recommendation

This matter will be conclusively dealt with in the Indigenous and Complimentary Medicine Bill, 2015, which is before Parliament.

4. 5 STIGMA AND MENTAL ILLNESS

The Committee noted that;

The stigma surrounding mental health and its treatment is one of the greatest barriers to mental healthcare. It causes discrimination, deprivation and exclusion of individuals and reduces access to care by individuals who need it the most. Despite the high prevalence of mental illness in Uganda, previous studies in Uganda have consistently demonstrated that stigmatizing of the mentally ill is still highly prevalent and not only by the general population but also by health providers.

According to Dr. Mutamba of Butabika Hospital in 2005 indicated that the hospital had 34.6% of patients in the out patients department and 42.5 % of those in the in patients felt stigmatized, indicating that local beliefs were the major cause of mental illness. One such belief is that mental illness is contagion us.

The Committee observed that;

Stigma makes communities to be discriminative and exclude people with mental illness from community activities including work and development activities which they would otherwise engage in, perpetuating poverty of families and communities. The vicious cycle of poverty and mental illness has been well elaborated in low income countries such as Uganda.

Due to stigma, people that need care do not seek medical help because of poor health seeking behavior, non-identification or inadequate accessibility to services.

Recommendation

The Committee recommends that Government should;

- a) Allocate resources for mobilization and sensitization of the communities on the mental health care services.
- b) Work towards eliminating discrimination, deprivation and exclusion of individual's access to mental health facilities and services.

4.6 HUMAN RESOURCE

The Committee was informed that;

According to WHO-AIMS Report on Mental Health System in Uganda, WHO and Ministry of Health, Kampala, Uganda, 2006, the total number of human resources working in mental health facilities is 1.13 per 100,000 persons as at 2005. The breakdown according to profession is as follows: 0.08 psychiatrists; 0.04 other medical doctors; 0.78 nurses; 0.01 psychologists; 0.01 social workers; 0.01 occupational therapists; and 0.2 psychiatric clinical officers; Only 1% of the medical doctors and 4% of the nurses were specialized in psychiatry.

Handwritten signatures and notes:

- At...*

- ...*

Currently, the country has at least 30 registered psychiatrists, 225 psychiatric clinical officers and 2117 psychiatric nurses. Of the Psychiatrists, 80% are based in Kampala. Of the Psychiatric clinical officers about 50% are based in the central region, 20% in western Uganda and 15% each in northern and Eastern regions of Uganda. Of the psychiatric nurses, 40% are registered nurses while the remaining 60% are certificate nurses.

Also many nurses are deployed at service points where they are not able and at times not allowed to offer Mental Health services but instead work as general nurses.

In the hospitals, there are 0.04 psychiatrists per bed in community based psychiatric inpatient units. As for nurses, there are 0.16 nurses per bed in community based psychiatric inpatient units.

Observation

The Committee expressed concern over the low staffing levels of mental health workers required in so as to serve the country more equitably and efficiently that cannot cop-up with the growing burden of mental health challenges in the country.

Recommendations

The Committee recommends that Government should make deliberate efforts to train and recruit mental health service providers.

4.7 HEALTH PROMOTION AND DISEASE PREVENTION

The Committee observed that;

- Sensitization on Mental Health issues and disease prevention interventions are very critical requiring the sector to refocus its plans/budgets on preventive interventions especially community mobilization and empowerment.

Recommendation

The Committee recommends that;

- a) Government should adopt a multi-sectoral approach to enhance collaboration with development partners to undertake Mental Health promotion and disease prevention interventions.
- b) Messages for behavior change must be redesigned to communicate in a manner that gives adequate information to the population on health promotion.

4.8 COMMUNITY MENTAL HEALTH SERVICE DELIVERY (CMHSD)

The Committee was informed that to avert the negative situation;

The Ministry of Health intends to establish, a Community Mental Health Service Delivery Strategy (CMHSDS) that involves integrating the evidence-base within existing clinical models. This is commonly used for integration of mental health treatment and care into the community to reduce dependency on primary health centers.

The essential components of a comprehensive, integrated model of CMHSDs include: acute and emergency response, community continuing care services, assertive rehabilitation teams, partnerships with general practitioners and other human services agencies.

Recommendation

The Committee recommends that Government should work out on the implementation of the Community Mental Health Service (CMHSDS).

4.9 MENTAL HEALTH AMONG THE CHILDREN AND ADOLESCENTS

The Committee was informed that;

In Uganda the burden of MNS disorders in children and adolescents has been increased because of the effects of war, exposure to violence including defilement, poverty, physical, emotional and sexual abuse, commercial sex and sex for survival, addiction to substances such as alcohol and cannabis, infection or being affected by HIV and AIDS and other diseases like malaria resulting in psychological and/or intellectual handicap, bereavement and separation.

Others causes include, Epilepsy which is common and it is often complicated by stigma, and delayed access to treatment. Without treatment it may cause brain damage and additional accidental injuries.

The Committee further learnt that according to the Child and Adolescent Mental Health Policy Guidelines, 2017;

- a) Children and adolescents are vulnerable to certain specific Mental, Neurological and substance use disorders due to their incomplete physical, mental and social growth and development
- b) In Uganda, demographic data showed that children under 15 years of age are a significant proportion of Uganda's population, 16,898,000 (49.7%); and of these 337960, (2%) children are living with some form of disability (UBOS, 2014, UNICEF, 2014).
- c) The Health Management Information Systems (HMIS) indicate low identification and attendance for treatment of such diseases and epilepsy compared with the prevalence estimated at 1-2% (MoH Reports 2012).

[Handwritten signatures and initials at the bottom of the page, including names like 'Azibwe', 'Gerald', 'M. Bulumya', and 'Dante'] taken into his or her custody and later to a mental health unit for assessment, admission and treatment.

b) Assisted admission and treatment

A person is admitted for assisted admission and treatment, where the person is taken to a mental health unit by a relative or concerned person and where due to the illness any delay in admitting may result into death or harm to himself, another person or property. The patient is incapable of making informed decision on the need for treatment.

c) Voluntary admission

Voluntary admission is where a person with mental illness who has attained the apparent age of eighteen years or if below eighteen years his or her parents or guardian obtains permission to submit him or her voluntarily to a health unit or a mental health unit to receive treatment voluntarily. Such a person only receives treatment after giving informed consent to the treatment.

d) Involuntary Admissions

Involuntarily admission and treatment is caused on a written request by a relative who may include; a husband, wife, mother, father, sister or uncle or any concerned person who reasonably believes that a person with mental illness is likely to benefit by treatment and care in a mental health unit but is for the time being incapable of expressing himself/herself as willing or unwilling to receive treatment. Involuntary examination, admission and treatment shall only be carried out at a mental health unit.

Observation

The Committee observed that;

- Since mental illness affects a person's ability to understand, most of the admissions at health units or mental health units are by emergency or involuntary admission which often times requires the involvement of the Police.
- Several provisions in the Bill empower the police to effect an admission of a person suspected to be with mental illness who is, not willing to go to the health unit to enter any premises, without a warrant to apprehend the person for purposes of taking him or her for medical attention.

- The bill further empowers the police to refer a person arrested for a criminal act who is suspected to have mental illness to take the person to a health unit for assessment.
- However, the Bill does not provide for funding of the above activities as well as the mechanism of training police officers or establishing a unit to specifically handle persons with mental illness so that the officers are equipped with the skills and facilities of affecting the apprehension of such persons without abusing their human rights.

Recommendation

The Committee recommends that;

- a) Government should fund the Police adequately in order to empower it effect the apprehension of persons with mental illness in a humanly manner and consequently take them to health units for assessment and treatment.
- b) There is need for a deliberate effort by Government to establish specialized unit and accordingly, train and skill police officers and other persons who are empowered by the bill in the administration and apprehension of persons with mental illness for purposes of taking them for assessment and treatment so that it is done in accordance to human rights standards.

4.11 STUDY VISIT TO NAIROBI- KENYA

During the consideration of the Mental Health Bill 2014, a delegation from the Committee under-took a study visit to Nairobi- Kenya from 25th to 31st March, 2018, to bench mark on the best practices in Mental Health service delivery. The delegation had informative interactions with several stakeholders including the academia on issues of Mental Health Policy and Mental Health treatment.

A collection of handwritten signatures and initials in black ink, including names like 'Ayubwe', 'Raf', 'Jemini', 'M. B...', and 'George'.

The information received greatly guided the Committee during processing of the Bill.

The delegation was informed that the Kenya Mental Health Policy 2015-2030 is a commitment to pursuing policy measures and strategies for achieving optimal health status and capacity of each individual. The goal of this policy is to attain the highest standard of mental health. This policy recognizes that it is the responsibility of every person in the public and private sector to ensure the goal is attained.

The Mental health policy interventions are broad and cut across other sectors, and consequently, this calls for a multi-disciplinary and inter-sectoral approach in the implementation of the policy.

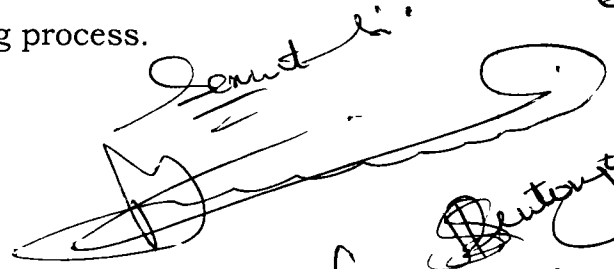

Lessons learnt

The delegation noted that,

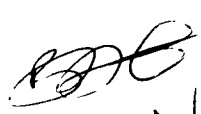

- The policy was developed through a consultative process involving the public, private and non-state actors under the stewardship of the Ministry of Health.
- Best practices in the Management and governance of Mental Health service delivery can be achieved through the promotion of global governance which refers to the implementation of policies and practices that promotes equitable health systems as defined by the World Health Organization (WHO).
- The concept of governance in mental health includes standards of quality and attention centered on the patient, and incorporates the consumers of mental healthcare in the decision-making process.

Recommendation

The Committee recommends that;

- Government should adopt World Health Organization (WHO) best practices in the Management and governance of Mental Health service delivery by ensuring global practices that promote equitable health governance systems through policies and as defined by WHO.
- Government should improve the quality of service and ensure respect of human rights in mental health units and social care facilities as are provided in the WHO Quality Rights tool kit and Checklist for Evaluating a Mental Health Plan.

4.12 TREATMENT OPTIONS

Many of the stake holders that appeared before the Committee expressed reservations on clauses 11 and 12 of the Bill. The clauses provide for the treatment options for persons with mental illness.

a) Clause 11 provides for Electroconvulsive therapy. Electroconvulsive therapy (ECT) is a defined as a procedure, done under general anesthesia, in which small electric currents are passed through the brain, intentionally triggering a brief seizure. ECT seems to cause changes in brain chemistry that can quickly reverse symptoms of certain mental illnesses. It is also defined as referred to as shock treatment, for psychiatric illness in which seizures are electrically induced in patients to provide relief from mental disorders.

ECT often works when other treatments are unsuccessful and when the full course of treatment is completed. The committee was informed that ECT is an ancient treatment option which ought not to be included in the bill because it is given without anesthesia hence leading to memory loss, fractured bones and other serious side effects.

Committee observation

The Committee observed that much of the stigma attached to ECT is based on early treatments in which high doses of electricity were administered without anesthesia, leading to memory loss, fractured bones and other serious side effects.

During the study visit to Nairobi, Kenya, the Committee learnt that ECT is much safer today and is still in use even in the developed Countries. The Committee noted that although ECT still causes some side effects, it is given under anesthesia and uses electric currents given in a controlled setting to achieve the most benefit with the fewest possible risks.

Recommendation

The Committee recommends that;

- ECT is a viable method that should not be deleted from the bill; instead checks and balances should be put in place to cater for possible abuse and misuse of the treatment option. Such measures include ensuring that it should only be recommended for use by a highly trained and experienced psychiatrist in case of involuntary admission and for voluntary admission informed consent should be given.
- A deterrent fine and sentence to be given to a person who performs ECT contrary to the law in order to deter would be offenders.

The bottom of the page contains several handwritten signatures and initials in black ink. On the left, there are several overlapping signatures, including one that appears to say 'Gemini'. In the center, there is a signature that looks like 'Raf'. To the right, there is a large, stylized signature that could be 'Vic'. Below these, there are more signatures, including one that looks like 'Bentony' and another that looks like 'Banyo'. The page number '21' is printed in the center of the bottom section.

- The head note “treatment for involuntary patients” appearing before clause 11 should be deleted and substituted with ‘Treatment options’, since the treatments are not only for involuntary patients.

b) Clause 12 provides for seclusion of patients: This is where a patient is placed alone in an isolated room for some time under observation.

Many stake holders expressed reservation towards the use of seclusion in the mental hospitals in Uganda; they informed the Committee that the current rooms used for seclusion in Uganda especially at Butabika National Referral and Teaching Mental Hospital are not up to standard. They informed the Committee that the rooms are cold, unpadded, and dark with no toilet facilities and minimal observance by medical practitioners for patients put under seclusion as required by the WHO guidelines.

The Committee noted that;

a) Seclusion should be in a room or area designed for that purpose and in a safe environment that fulfill the standard minimum conditions which include:

- adequate light, heat and ventilation;
- means to easily observe the patient that also allows the patient to see the head and shoulders of the observer;
- means for a secluded patient to call for attention;
- fittings recessed to avoid potential for harm; and
- Furnishings (other than bedding) that are fixed to avoid the potential for harm.

b) Seclusion should only be authorized under certain conditions for example;

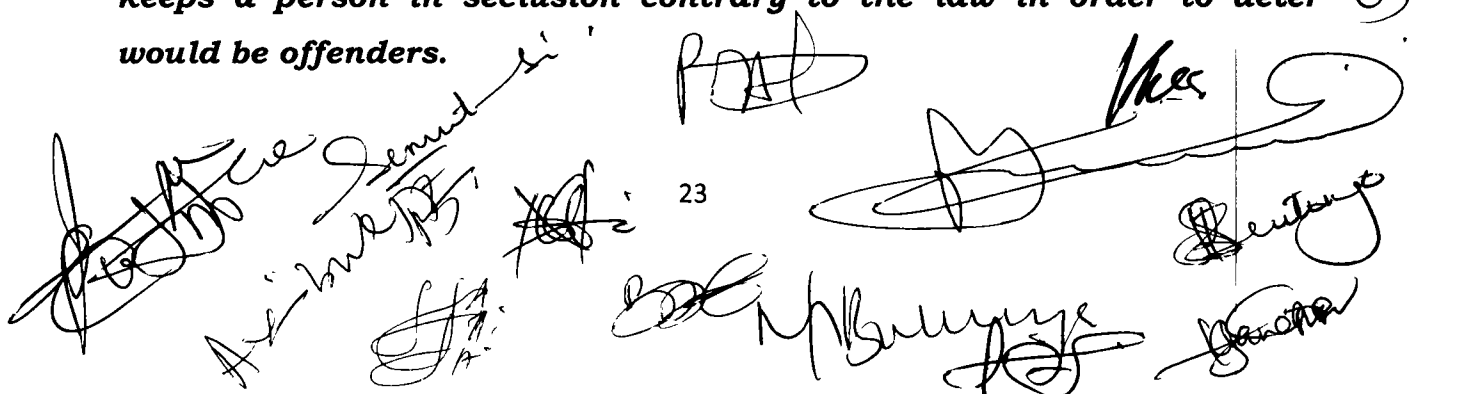

[Handwritten signatures and initials are present at the bottom of the page, including names like 'Arimba', 'Santoro', 'Bunung', and 'Kec'.]

- (i) the control of harmful behavior occurring during the course of a psychiatric illness that cannot be adequately controlled with psychological techniques and/or medication;
 - (ii) disturbance of behavior as a result of marked agitation, thought disorder, hyperactivity or grossly impaired judgment;
 - (iii) to reduce the disruptive effects of external stimuli in a person who is highly aroused due to their illness; and
 - (iv) to prevent harmful or destructive behavior, using specific indicators of impending disturbance which may be identified by either the individual or the staff, and which should wherever possible be part of an agreed management plan.
- c) There should be regular (time) intervals under which a person under seclusion should be monitored by the Medical Practitioners.

Recommendations

The Committee recommends that:

- Seclusion is a treatment option that cannot be dealt away with; however as the WHO guidelines clearly state, government should ensure that the rooms for seclusion satisfy the standard required in order to ensure safety of the patients.
- Seclusion should only be given as a last resort, under the prescribed circumstances and by recommendation of a psychiatrist.
- Budgetary allocations should be specifically made towards funding the current National Referral Mental Hospital – Butabika and other mental health units with seclusion rooms or services to upgrade the seclusion rooms to a standard that is required for such a purpose.
- A deterrent fine and sentence should be put in place for a person who keeps a person in seclusion contrary to the law in order to deter would be offenders.

 A large number of handwritten signatures and initials are present at the bottom of the page, including names like 'A. N. M. M.', 'P. A.', 'M. K.', 'S. S.', 'M. B.', and 'S. S.'.

(iv) Substituting the definition of the word “mental illness” with the following;

“mental illness means a diagnosis of a mental health condition in terms of accepted diagnostic criteria made by a mental health practitioner or medical practitioner authorized to make such diagnosis, mental health conditions include but are not are limited to depression, bipolar, anxiety disorders, schizophrenia and addictive behavior due to alcohol/ substance abuse among others”;

(v) Deleting the definition of the word “mental disorder”

(vi) Inserting the definition of the word “mental health services” immediately after the definition of the word ‘medical health practitioner’ to read as follows;

“mental health services refers to assessment, diagnosis, treatment, care counseling or advice given to an individual or group of individuals with mental illness or disorders”;

(vii) Inserting the definition of the word “mental health service user” immediately after the definition of the word ‘mental health services’ to read as follows;

“mental health service user refers to any person receiving either continuous or non-continuous mental health care and treatment services from a health unit, mental health unit or community aimed at enhancing his or her mental health status regardless of age, gender, social or economic standing”;

(viii) substituting the definition of the word “primary health center” with the following;

“primary health Centre” means a government primary health centre II, III or IV or equivalent health unit in the private sector”;

(ix) Inserting the definition of the word “treatment and care” immediately after the definition of the word ‘senior mental health practitioner’ to read as follows;

A collection of handwritten signatures and initials in black ink, scattered across the bottom of the page. Some are large and stylized, while others are smaller and more compact. They appear to be official signatures.

“treatment and care” means the provision of interventions whether medical or otherwise to a person with mental illness”.

Justification

Clause 3 is amended

(x) by deleting in paragraph (c) the word “voluntarily”.

Justification

To provide for access to mental health care services whether voluntarily, involuntarily or under emergency care.

(ii) by inserting a new sub-clause to read as follows;

“ensure that community mental health services are integrated in the treatment and care of persons with mental illness.”

Justification

To offer a holistic approach to the treatment of mental illness

3. Insert a new clause immediately after clause 3 to read as follows;
